A school for underprivileged children

Parijat Academy is a school for underprivileged children. It was established in 2003, starting with 4 children in a small room with a pair of desk and bench. It is a non religious and non profitable school providing free education. The school covers nine tribal villages namely Pamohi, Mahguapra, Deosutal, Garchuk, Mainakhorong, Dhalbama, Nowagaon, Garoghuli and Garbhanga. Parijat means name of a flower.

What is likely to be here?

Parijat Academy is situated in the village of Pamohi near fringe area of Deepor Beel wetland, where migratory birds can be seen. The area is prone to frequent flood. In the nearby villages of Parijat Academy, the poor tribal families make their livelihood through home made rice beer. Also they do woodcutting, daily labour and cultivation. So Parijat Academy is thinking for their children not to follow and practice this rice beer making system in their coming life. Parijat Academy's goal is to bring their poor children to school and make them engage during days at school by learning different things about health, education, music, culture, games etc. The subjects that children learning at Parijat Academy are Assamese, Hindi, English, Mathematics, Science, Social Studies, Environmental Studies, Moral Education, Drawing, Recitation, Music.

Cultivation of crop is not very feasible here. There is lack of health care facility. The literacy rate is very low. Children, especially girls are required to take care of household works.

Parijat means heavenly flower in Assamese. Education is children's birth right.

Why Parijat Academy?

Literacy rate is very poor here in this area. School drop out is also high here. We want 100% poor children to be educated. For this Parijat Academy is providing free education for the children. It will take 15 to 20 years to bring changes of these children of these areas. It is a long term project. A beginning has already been made.

Creating a "GOOD HEART"

Children are encouraged to develop the positive qualities of loving kindness, compassion and universal responsibility.
